"CHEAPEST" AND "BEST"

More truly is the best the cheapest in the purchase of a cream separator than in the purchase of any other farm machine. The really cheap cream separator is the one which will perform your work in the most profitable and satisfactory manner, and last the greatest number of years. Basing the value of the separator upon durability, without considering quality of work, if it lasts but two years it is worth only one afthref what the separator is that lasts ten years, and one-tenth of what the one is that lasts twenty years. In addition, if it loses a large percentage of cream and is difficult and expensive to operate its value is placed at even a still lower level. DE LAVAL cream separators are today admitted by every experienced user to do as near perfect work as a cream see arator possibly can. Proof of this is seen in the fact that over us of the world's creameries and all largest users the DE LAVAL exclusively. As to dorability, the DE LAVAL have an average life of twenty years. The very best of other separators do not last over eight or ten years at the very longest, and the poorest generally become worthless in from six months to two years. At the same time these machines are incapable of do. ing perfect work except under ideal conditions, such as cannot possibly be had in farm use, -- otherwise they lose a large percent. age of the cream, are hard to operate, and in reality are but little better than gravity setting systems. It is therefore seen how little the first cost of a cream separator really means. The cost in the end is what counts. All in all, considering dollar for dollar value, a DE LAVAL machine gives from five to ten times more true separator worth than any other machine on the market today. These are not mere paper claims, but facts, proof of which can be had for the asking.
